byDesign

You want to create a unique platform for your publications, one that allows you to maintain full control of the website and its content, gives you the flexibility to package and sell your content as you require, and is fully branded in a way that your readers will recognize. ingentaconnect byDesign solution gives you the freedom to achieve your own online presence, while at the same time integrating your content with the extensive functionality of ingentaconnect.

byDesign complements ingentaconnect production, hosting and delivery services by providing an entirely publisher-branded view onto Connect-hosted content, thus presenting you with a value-for-money publications website that precisely replicates your own brand, and enables seamless full text access and searching within your own environment. The service includes popular end-user features such as RSS feeds, branded email alerting, various ecommerce options and marked lists.

Why choose byDesign?

Simplicity

byDesign is a simple way to provide your customers with sophisticated online content services within your own website.

Revenue

New revenue streams can be generated by offering online subscription, issue and article sales through your website.

Renewals

You have invested in your website, and have an audience of members or subscribers entitled to access your publications. Provide them with the benefit of an online journal, accessible with their membership login, to guarantee subscription renewals.

Reputation

Providing online access within your own website will reinforce the brand of your publications.

How does byDesign work?

Not only will you benefit from your content being hosted on the ingentaconnect delivery platform, your branding will be replicated on a series of pages including tables of contents for each issue, abstract page for each article and article purchase pages to establish your own online presence.

We offer seamless access to your content via links from your site to these pages. Automatic updates are made so that your site is up-to-date with ingentaconnect, and your branded email alerts go out with each new issue that is published online.

You choose the additional services for your site, including searching, email alerts, RSS feeds, marked lists, e-commerce, supplementary data and more.
